Boot Camp Course Description – 3 Day Course:

Leadership Elements for Aviation Professionals is designed to help today and tomorrow’s aviation leaders. Flight Departments and other aviation organizations often rate technical competency as the most important reason to promote employees to a leadership role. And many aviation professionals rate their own technical abilities as far superior to their people-related skills and abilities. However, with the advent of new technologies and increasing customer expectations, coupled with the complexity of multiple generations in the workplace, today’s managers must have true leadership skills to turn these challenges into opportunities. The value proposition for business aviation organizations is changing, and the leadership must be prepared to lead.

This three-day leadership boot camp dives into the environment of all department managers through several lenses of leadership and team building, while addressing critical challenges and opportunities for growth.
